DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 11, line 3, "the exception" lacks proper antecedent basis.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

4. Claims 1-7 and 9-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Speyer (2003/0098579).

Speyer discloses a portable media for confidential information comprising a first substrate (1) having a front and rear surface; a second substrate (1') having a front and rear surface; the first substrate being arranged with the rear surface overlying the front surface of the second substrate; a fastening material fastening the overlying first and second substrates together along a line (see page 1, col. 2, [0017] and figure 1); such that the first substrate can be folded about the line (7) to bring the two parts together (as seen in figure 2); so as to form a booklet of four sheet and eight surfaces; the substrates being printed with confidential information and game indicia printed on the surfaces and being covered by a layer of scratch-off material (see page 2, col. 2, [0035].

The game indicia being printed by variable image printing and the first and second substrates being supplied in an initial condition for dispensing in a flat unfolded condition do not structurally limit the claim. The patentability of a product does not depend on its method of production. Product-by-Process claims are not limited to the manipulations of recited steps, only the structure implied by the steps. (See MPEP 2113)

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Speyer. Speyer discloses the claimed invention except for the specific arrangement and/or content of indicia (printed matter) set forth in the claim(s). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide any desired indicia on the substrates, since it would only depend on the intended use of the assembly and the desired information to be displayed. Further, it has been held that when the claimed printed matter is not functionally related to the substrate it will not distinguish the invention from the prior art in terms of patentability. In re Gulack, 217 USPQ 401, (CAFC 1983). The fact that the content of the printed matter placed on the substrate may render the device more convenient by providing an individual with a specific type of substrate does not alter the functional relationship. Mere support by the substrate for the printed matter is not the kind of functional relationship necessary for patentability. Thus, there is no novel and unobvious functional relationship between the printed matter and the substrate which is required for patentability.

7. Claims 13 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Speyer in view of Scrymgeour et al. (6,145,885).

Speyer discloses the claimed invention except for game ticket constructions being connected to each other and having transverse rows of perforations dividing each from the next and fan folded for dispensing.

Scrymgeour et al. disclose a game ticket construction wherein a plurality of game tickets are connected to each other and have transverse rows of perforations (132) dividing each from the next (as seen in figure 5) and fan folded (as seen in figure 8). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify Speyer's invention to include a plurality of game tickets connected by perforations, as taught by Scrymgeour et al., to enable the tickets to be carried on a continuous web of material.

Conclusion

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The cited references disclose game tickets.
